TEACHING STYLES

Vorlesung (V) - Lecture
Lectures introduce into the subject and present themes and content of the subject.

Übung (Ü) - Recitation
The content of the lecture is repeated and practiced. Examples and exercises with their corresponding solutions are given.

Tutorium (T) - Tutorial
Tutorials are often given by students of higher semesters and support students in understanding the subject.

Seminar (S) - Seminar
Seminars typically have significantly fewer students per professor than normal courses, and are generally more specific in topic of study. Seminars can revolve around term papers, exams, presentations, and several other assignments. Registration for the seminar is necessary in advance.

SELECTION OF COURSES

Link to the schedules of lessons at our faculty:
https://tu-dresden.de/bu/wirtschaft/studium/courses/stundenplaene

The lectures/courses can be chosen freely and attended without registration. In some cases - especially trainings/seminars - the number of students is limited. In these cases you have to contact the respective lecturer in charge.
For participation in recitation please note the possible registration deadlines at the chairs.

Types of Examinations

The purpose of written examination is to measure student’s knowledge in lectured topics. (in the lecture period or examination period at the end of the semester).

In seminars students have to write term papers and give presentations. They work independently and systematically on a topic which is directly related to the seminar.

Evaluation of Examination Results

Information for „Transcript of Records (ToR)“

You do not receive the ToR automatically. Please contact the examination office before departure. If the results of your language courses are to be listed at the ToR, please submit the language certificates in original (signed) at the examination office.

The credit points (ECTS) are recorded on your transcript of records in case of fully completed modules, otherwise only the workload of each performance will be recorded.

The Tutor Programme organised by the International Office

"Tutor programme" means that students (= tutors) help foreign students and applicants. There is at least one tutor per department. Tutors are there for both degree students (TU Dresden degrees) and non-degree or guest students (who are studying in Dresden for one or two semesters).

The purpose of the tutor programme is to support foreign students during and before their studies, especially at the beginning, regardless of the entry level to the TU Dresden.
