

Gunda-Alexandra Detmers

Technische Universität Dresden, Faculty of Business and Economics
Chair of Economics, esp. International Monetary Economics
Email: gunda-alexandra.detmers@tu-dresden.de

Current position

2017-present Post-doc, Technische Universität Dresden (on leave: 2018-2019)

Past positions

2019-2020 Visiting Lecturer, Universität Hamburg
2018-2019 Visiting Professor (W3), Universität Hamburg
2016-2018 Researcher, Magyar Nemzeti Bank (MNB)
2016-2018 Lecturer, Pallas Athéné Domus Scientiae Alapítvány
2009-2016 Project Member / Research Assistant, SFB 649 "Economic Risk"
2009-2016 Research and Teaching Assistant, Freie Universität Berlin, Chair for Econometrics
2014-2015 Trainee, European Central Bank (ECB)
2011-2012 Visiting Researcher, Reserve Bank of New Zealand

My professional experience further covers a student research and teaching assistant position at the Chair for Empirical Macroeconomics at Johann Wolfgang Goethe-Universität Frankfurt am Main as well as intern positions at the International Policy Division of the European Central Bank, the Czech branch of Transparency International in Prague as well as at the Department of Consumer Prices at the Federal Statistical Office in Wiesbaden.

Education

2016 Dr. rer. pol (equiv. to Ph.D.) at Freie Universität Berlin
2009 Diploma in Economics (Dipl.-Vw., equiv. to M.Sc.) at Goethe-Universität Frankfurt a.M.

Research

My research specialises on empirical macroeconomics with a focus on monetary policy, esp. central bank communication and forward guidance. Current projects and publications can be found on the institute's homepage.

Teaching

My teaching experience covers courses in Macroeconomics, Monetary Policy and Econometrics on Bachelor and Master level.

My complete CV can be requested via my email.