

Bridging Grants for Doctoral Candidates at TU Dresden

General guidelines on writing a final report:

- General information on the awardee (first/last name, faculty, field, funding period, title of dissertation, etc.)
- Short summary of the status of the dissertation at the beginning of the funding period
- Short description of the progress made during the funding period
- Optional: Work/Research environment
- Objectives and results
- Evaluation of results
- Follow-up financing
- Summary and outlook
- Optional: Acknowledgements
- Optional: Suggestions and comments on the funding program
- Optional: Enclosures (publications, statistics, etc.)

Final reports can be structured and written on an individual basis. Nevertheless, please refer to the above mentioned points.

As source of information/help for future awardees, we would like to publish selected reports on our website.

Should you agree to the publication/forwarding of your report, please include the following sentence at the end of your report:

I hereby agree to the publication and forwarding of this report as source of information for interested applicants and future awardees.

Should you agree to the anonymized publication/forwarding of your report, please include the following sentence at the end of your report:

I hereby agree to the anonymized publication and forwarding of this report as source of information for interested applicants and future awardees.

Should you not agree to the publication/forwarding of your report, please include the following sentence at the end of your report:

I hereby do not agree to the publication and forwarding of this report as source of information for interested applicants and future awardees.

Should questions come up, please do not hesitate to contact us.
