Data Scientist wanted!

Student Job

We are currently looking for a python-programmer to strengthen our IT team in the department of Psychosocial Medicine and Developmental Neuroscience in the University Hospital Carl-Gustav Carus.

We conduct clinical research based on magnetic resonance images (functional and structural), genetic data, blood samples and behavioral data. Joining our team will give you the chance to put your knowledge into practice and get a first idea of what the challenges of a job in Data Science are. You will work in a fun, friendly and interdisciplinary team where everyone is eager to share her knowledge and to help.

Requirements:

- You study Informatics, Physics, Mathematics (or similar)
- You have experience in object-oriented programming, particularly in Python, and are familiar with Unix shell-scripting
- You can work independently but also enjoy to collaborate with teammates
- You are interested in clinical research and thrilled to know how a person with a technical background can contribute

Weekly working time: 10 hours

Starting time: as soon as possible

Please contact us telephonically at: (03 51) 458 5245 if you have any questions.
If we have awaken your interest, please send your application (cover letter, CV with marks, eventually recommendation letters) per email to:
