That’s me!

Develop your own professional profile, present yourself & become more visible

Category: Communication & Interpersonal Skills

Date & Time: 01./02.10.2020
09:00 – 17:00

Content: Participants develop their professional and personal vision. They become aware of the next strategic steps for their professional development / career and define concrete measures. They practice to be able to talk about their professional skills and personal strengths in a confident way (body language, voice and speech). Participants will learn how to overcome fears of contact at conferences or in other networking situations, how to establish contacts more easily, and how to master small talk with confidence. Besides that, the workshop attendees reflect on their own professional visibility and develop ways to become more visible online and offline. Therefore, they analyze their own networking style and recognize concrete possibilities to maintain and further develop their own network.

Target Group*: Female PhD students, Postdocs and research assistants

Trainer: Dr. Stephanie Rohac

Registration: If you wish to attend the training course, please kindly register by sending an email to crc1415@tu-dresden.de.

*Participants have to be financed by the CRC 1415.
