— Study and writing groups for everyone

Study and writing groups for all interested students are initiated and supported as part of a cooperation between the Central Student Information and Counselling Service and the Writing Center. If required, the groups are moderated at the beginning of the semester by the Central Student Information and Counselling Service and Writing Center staff. In this way, participants' concerns can be discussed and agreements can be made on how to work. Upon request, we can support the group on topics related to studying or writing and in improving cooperation. The participants can be inspired by the experiences of others, motivate and support each other, exchange ideas and get feedback on a regular basis and enjoy a sense of achievement together.

Note

This overview was prepared for a workshop of the Central Student Information and Counselling Service for international students as part of the PASST? Partnership – Successful Studies – TU Dresden. The aim is to provide useful information for the participants of the workshop. The offers are listed in order of importance, but also alphabetically for offers of equal importance. It is not necessarily a complete list. Please send any comments, additions or requests for changes to the email address: ariunaa.ishig@tu-dresden.de
