Research, Teaching and Development

The ZLSB performs a number of research and development tasks, including

- Developing and piloting study and advanced training options, supporting in-service scientific training for teachers, conducting surveys among teachers in Saxony,
- Quality management in initial teacher education and continuous professional development,
- Empirical studies with students concerning the choice of study programmes, study behaviour, discontinuation of studies and the development of competencies in self-reflection and aptitude within the study programme,
- Providing support to students throughout the different stages of the study programme,
- Digitalisation in all phases of teacher education,
- Education for Sustainable Development,
- Third Mission,
- Internationalising in teacher education, collaborating with partner universities around the world.

Team of School teachers

Furthermore, the ZLSB employs a team of 17 experienced school teachers to support supervision of students in school internships, and to conduct educational research at the intersection between theory and practice.

Center for Teacher Education and Educational Research

The Center for Teacher Education and Educational Research (ZLSB)

The Center for Teacher Education and Educational Research (ZLSB) was founded in 2005 as a central academic institution of Technische Universität Dresden. The center, which operates across faculties, coordinates teacher education study programmes at TU Dresden, supervises students in the Academic Affairs Office for Teacher Training, contributes to advanced teacher training and initiates research and development projects.

The ZLSB contributes to the 'Quality offensive in teacher education' launched by the Federal and State governments with its project 'TUD-Sylber - Synergetic Teacher Education'. The project 'IMPRESS', funded by the DAAD, aims to internationalise teacher training at the university. The EC funded project 'TAP-TS' aims to strengthen school teachers' competences for teaching sustainability. The project 'TUD-MTC' provides support to students towards successfully completing their studies, with backing from the Free State of Saxony. In addition to fundamental teacher training courses, the ZLSB assists the Free State of Saxony in providing professional and scientific training to prospective teachers from other fields within the project 'BQL - second-career-teacher program'.

A board, supported by a head office, runs the Center. The participation of the relevant faculties and status groups is coordinated by the Academic Council, as well as working groups focused on the promotion of didactic innovation in education and research, internships, further training options for teaching staff, inclusion and digitalisation, and vocational education. In addition to representatives of the university, the members of the working groups include representatives of the second phase of teacher training and the educational authorities. The students have their own central representation at the center.

TU Dresden offers initial teacher education for primary schools („Grundschule“), secondary schools („Oberschule“, „Gymnasium“) and vocational schools („Berufsbildende Schulen“). These study programmes are run by 10 faculties in 4 fields, comprising 20 subjects and 10 professional fields. In addition, all TU Dresden departments offer classes in the teacher education study programmes.

Management and Head Office

The head office including a general manager supports the ZLSB board and organises as well as coordinates the execution of the Center's responsibilities. Together, the board and the general manager represent the Center in teacher education networks, cross-institutional working groups and joint international projects.
